NEW BLIZZARD SWEEPING OHIO; MERCURY DROPS

State Meteorologist Sees Zero Weather Looming For Tonight

INCHES ADDED TO BLANKET OF SNOW

Plane Flights Delayed or Canceled; Highway Traffic Slowed

A new blizzard swept over Ohio adding several inches of snow to the heavy blanket left by yesterday's storm, and disrupting traffic schedules. More than two inches of snow had fallen in Salem. Highway snow plows were in full force.

The cold blast rode in on a 35-mile-an-hour wind, dropped the temperature from above freezing to around the 20 mark, and brought predictions from the state meteorologist that the reading would be zero tonight.

Early morning planes took off before the storm broke, but many flights were canceled or delayed by the poor visibility. Buses and automobiles were forced to a grinding pace by slippery roads and high snow drifts, but tractors and farm lines were able to stay near normal time.

Ice Covers Roads
Champaign county roads were glaze of ice as the result of a storm which preceded the snow. The county highway department was attempting to clear the roads of high drifts. Harvey Leppner, county superintendent, ordered all schools, planned to order all pupils home from school if indications were that the roads would become impassable.

A number of Fayette county's schools were closed because of blocked roads. The snow drifting to a depth of four or five feet. County roads north and south of Washington courthouse were closed. The highway department was attempting to clear them.

Patrol Radio Silenced
District B radio station of the highway patrol at Massillon was out of commission for 30 minutes as a result of the storm.

The Ohio river rose three feet tonight at Portsmouth, but no immediate flood danger was seen. The upper reaches of the river, Cincinnati reported no rise. A 62-mile-an-hour gust at 4,000 feet swept over the city.

Dayton expected the temperature to drop to five below zero tonight, for a two-inch snowfall in four hours. The temperature skidded from 31 to 19 during that time. Lancaster's roads were clear, a single glaze sweeping the snow off highways, but Lorain reported a standstill at the worst. The grip of the storm. Similar conditions prevailed in Sandusky.

The temperature dropped to eight below zero at Akron as a light fall. Warren, Mansfield, Massillon, Newark, and Youngstown were hit with snow and heavy rain, with a drop to zero expected early tonight.

Streets in Middletown, Alliance and Wilmington were snow-drifted. Serious accidents were reported.

KING EDWARD VIII

Despite virtual certainty since King George's serious illness in 1928 that within a few years the Prince of Wales would be called upon to serve as king it is difficult to think of him as the new representative of the British crown. Yet, there is general agreement that King Edward VIII will bring additional honor to the best of Britain's royal traditions.

King Edward has been reared in the belief which endeared his father to the British people—that the king exists to serve, rather than to be served. If his palpable humanness makes it difficult to think of him as king, that is proof of successful training. He will not be a cold or a disinterested king, but a warmly sympathetic man on whom fate has placed the British crown.

Many Americans are puzzled by the relationship of the king and the British empire. It is not an easy thing to understand and, unless one vital distinction is made, it cannot be understood at all. That is the distinction between the British crown and the British king. The crown is impersonal. It is almost an absolute ruler over the British people by virtue of its general recognition as the ultimate authority.

The British king, however, is personal and limited. He has duties and privileges, but his authority rests in the crown. Since the crown rules through the agency of the cabinet and does not control the cabinet, the king has no absolute power. Yet, the king may be widely influential in determining the policy of the cabinet, depending on his intelligence and character. Great Britain is a democracy in practice, but with an hereditary monarchy.

It is a satisfactory arrangement which, like many satisfactory arrangements, is more accidental than intentional. As a whole the British people find it acceptable, which is after all the real test of government. The new King Edward, still a young man, has inherited a firm foundation upon which to build the prestige of his royal family.

TROUBLE WAS INEVITABLE

Many doubts and questions are being resolved out of early administration of the social security act. In some cases they concern the principle of the legislation. For the most part, they arise from distrust of the mechanics of the vast legislative structure which is supposed to produce social security.

The fact is that the social security act, frequently named as the outstanding accomplishment of the Roosevelt administration to date, was created under conditions which made doubts and questions inevitable. Although it is the product of trained minds and expert investigators, it was never submitted to that exhaustive debate which is the only means of adjusting legislation to the common ideas and practices of the public.

It might be said without fear of successful contradiction that it was adopted as a principle, but that the means of effectuating the principle still are open to questioning. The questioning is becoming more aggressive and penetrating as the act enters its first phase of administrative trial. The United States is just beginning to become aware of the problems inherent in any attempt to establish social security. The same problems have perplexed European nations for decades.

Careful students warned Americans at the outset of the legislative drive to enact social security legislation that they would not obtain its benefits without protracted and discouraging experimentation. Their warning was given scant attention at the time, but it is beginning now to be meaningful. The United States has legislated another problem into existence—a problem which still will be bothering it half a century from now, if the experiences of other nations with social security mean anything.

THE STARS SAY

For Thursday, January 23.

A very interesting and progressive day is presaged from the prevailing planetary influences, although there may be some trivial delays, disappointments or disputes to be patiently dealt with. The large opportunity will come in negotiations with mergers combines, diplomatic circles or secret organizations. Or in any circumstances in which tact, subtlety or secret agreements best serve. With such tactics powerful friends will be found ready to endorse or substantially support meritorious propositions. But shun quarrels and irritabilities.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a progressive and prosperous year, especially in connection with close corporations, rings or secret bodies.

A child born on this day may be capable, versatile and ambitious and may make its success through policy, diplomacy or shrewd methods.

Notable nativity: George McManus, cartoonist.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 22—A gag of the hell-roaring saloons in the mining towns is now one of the diversions of the drowsy New York bars. When desert rats and hard-panners came to camp for a binge they received, when they had reached the sleeping stage, the "hot foot."

Among the snoring boozers around the big belled stoves in the grog of Cripple Creek during the gold rush, it inspired several shootings. The "hot foot" is an old fashioned match stuck in the shoe sole and set afire. When it burns to the end, there is a scream and epileptic jig.

Heat against leather creates a sting like suddenly stepping on red hot iron. Such plushy estimations as the Stork club, El Morocco, etc., have a hot footing almost every dawn. The baby-faced Donahue boy in his cherubic innocence may apply it to Alfred Vanderbilt and so on.

Not long ago they tossed a dinner for Abe Lyman. He had just reached a misty-eyed interlude in his speech of thanks when his face froze in sudden horror. Then he let go an Indian shriek and leaped high. Jack Dempsey had crawled under the table and bestowed the "hot foot."

Sherman Billingsley seems to have sustained the after-midnight popularity of his Stork club for a strictly Broadway clientele, longer than any other of the current crop. A runner-up and sharing the same type of patronage is the dawn oasis, El Morocco. Each is a sort of melting pot for Broadway and a pinch of Park ave. "slummers" and a bonanza for the chatter writers. Texas Guinan caught the same crowd when she was hello-suckering the multitudes.

One of the mullioned memorial windows in The Little Church Around the Corner is to George and Elizabeth Wilson—"Sometime Doorkeepers in this House of the Lord." George, born in slavery, was one of the fortunate Negroes to find refuge in the edifice. A conscientious worker, he remained there until the end of his long life, bowing hundreds of communicants to their pews. His wife was the janitress and kept the church pin-neat and shining.

Until his passing few of the thousands he made laugh knew Clarence Day was almost a helpless invalid. His hilarious drawings for his equally hilarious essays were executed with a pencil attached to a contrivance he moved slowly and painfully with the upper part of his arm, the lower part being impotent from arthritis. His "Life With Father" has been a best seller many months and one of his most comical skits was written three weeks before the end.

Ring Lardner, toward the last, toiled in the same agonizing fashion and created similar laughs. A nurse in a hospital whither he had gone in life's twilight for a brief change of scene tells of the electric glow in his room all night while he crouched on the bedside at his typewriter, sometimes tapping out no more than a half dozen words an hour. It so happened the last piece he wrote was a burlesque of this column, a side-splitting travesty of exquisite ridicule but without malice. Such a kindly fellow was Lardner that he asked Harold Ross to ask if I minded. I was, of course, flattered.

The newspaper crowd after several weeks is still in a glow over the clear beat of the unassuming Times reporter, "Deac" Lyman, in the Lindbergh exile. His victory was the triumph of a reportorial trust. A memorable and needed lesson in ethics. He had won Lindbergh's confidence and never lost the sense of its precious rarity. When the auspicious moment came for him to score the scoop of his generation, it was accomplished with all the serenity of the fine friendship that inspired it.

A mechanical age has made the scoop, or as Park Row terms it, beat, little noticed outside newspaper circles unless it has the importance of the Lindbergh story. I recall a murder confession we bottled up on a mid-west paper to release with an early a. m. extra. Afterward a rival reporter discovered the "murderer" was a nut who would confess to any murder mentioned. So we couldn't crow.

On the avenue late I wandered to a Saks window where a trimmer was adjusting a mink creation on a dummy. He flicked the fur, twitched the collar and tilted his head, robin-like, in appraisal. Finally his glance caught mine and he backed sheepishly into the store. And I felt sillier than usual myself somehow.

FROM THE NEWS FILES

FORTY YEARS AGO

(Issue of Jan. 22, 1896.)

Thomas Walton, Jr., left this morning for St. Louis, Mo., where he has accepted a position.

George Harford has accepted a position at the Morgan hammer works in Alliance.

H. C. Nelson has returned from a business trip to St. Paul, Minn.

H. L. McArtor is in Columbus attending the state anti-saloon convention. He is a delegate from the Christian Endeavor union of the Presbyterian church.

THIRTY YEARS AGO

(Issue of Jan. 22, 1896.)

Not within the memory of the oldest residents has there been a day in January like yesterday. Such balmy weather is phenomenal in this section. The temperature hovered between 65 and 70 degrees in the shade all day. And a sure sign of spring was discovered here Saturday morning when small boys were seen shooting marbles.

Alliance is about to establish a brick and tile industry which observing citizens predict will some day be one of the railroad town's principal industries. There is no reason why Salem could not have such an industry when it is considered that practically every vein of coal in this vicinity is underlaid with a fine grade of fire clay.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

(Issue of Jan. 22, 1896.)

Lucian L. Gilbert, 71, well known Salem resident, died Thursday at his home in Pittsburgh. He was formerly a teacher in the public schools here, director of the Farmers National bank, lawyer, associated for many years with the Pennsylvania Railroad company as claim attorney and assistant counsel.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Vernon left Friday morning for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will spend several months.

Carroll A. Bumbaugh left Friday morning for Jacksonville, Fla., where he will spend some time in the interests of the Deming Co.

PARALYSIS

MANY PERSONS have the mistaken idea that paralysis is always incurable. This is not the case. I am glad to say.

The word "paralysis" is applied to partial or complete loss of function of certain muscles of the body. There may be associated with it complete loss of or decrease in sensation as well as motion. The sense of hearing, feeling or sight may be more or less involved. But usually the nerves governing the power to act are the ones involved.

Often the exact cause of paralysis is difficult to determine. In the very young infant, it can sometimes be traced to injury at birth. There may have been undue pressure on the child's head during delivery. As a result of this accident the brain may be affected. In an infant all the effects of the paralysis are likely to be temporary. To avoid this danger the modern medical practitioner uses every precaution.

Sources of Paralysis
Paralysis may result from lead poisoning. In such cases, special treatment and prolonged hospital care may be required. In rare instances it is necessary to operate.

Sometimes a nerve may become irritated or inflamed as a result of an infection. If the germs and inflammation attack the spinal cord, or the nerves leading to a limb, paralysis may appear. This may be temporary in its nature or, unfortunately, it may be permanent.

There are several types of paralysis. There is one form which involves only one side of the body. There is another which involves both sides. There is still another in which only one limb, an arm or leg, may be affected.

Cerebral hemorrhage, or "stroke," is the most common form of paralysis. This is the result of a bleeding into the tissues of the brain. The pressure of the blood causes a paralysis of the muscles supplied by that portion of the damaged brain.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must get at the cause—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the intestines, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Opposite Side

A hemorrhage on the right side of the brain may paralyze the left arm or leg; the paralysis is on the side opposite to the injured part of the brain. The explanation of this is that the nerve fibers which start from the brain cross at the base of that organ. If the hemorrhage is extensive it will involve both sides of the brain and then both sides of the body will be paralyzed.

In severe cases of apoplexy or stroke, the paralysis may extend to other organs of the body and have fatal results. In many instances paralysis due to brain hemorrhage could have been avoided. All too often this accident results from neglect of conditions like high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, kidney disease or heart disease.

Most persons have had reason to be familiar with the paralysis caused by infantile paralysis. I am glad to say that successful methods of cure are now available to victims of this disease.

F. Y. Q.—What can I do for rupture or hernia?

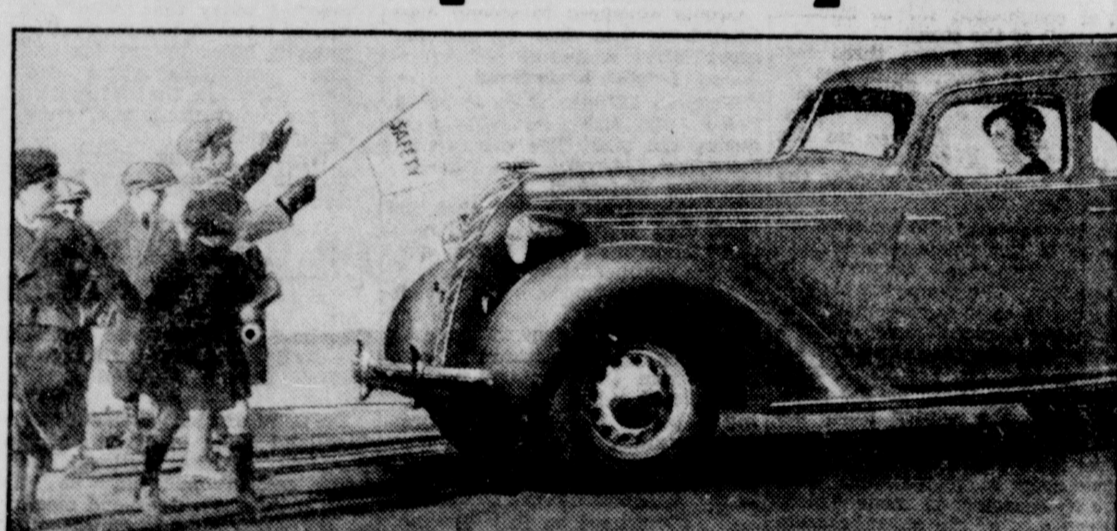

A—This condition requires careful medical attention. My suggestion would be to consult your physician.

"I put TERRAPLANE first because I put Safety First"

"Go ahead, kids... that car's got BRAKES!"

NO one needs to be reminded that safe driving in winter, more than at any other season, calls for a car that is safe. Then why not start this new year with the "safest car on today's highways?" Terraplane—with more new and important safety features than any other low priced automobile ever had!

Bring Safety up to Date!
For safer riding, safer steering, safer stopping, Terraplane brings you Radial Safety Control (patent applied for). Here is a revolutionary principle of front axle and spring design which new owners from coast to coast are hailing as the greatest safety feature in many years. None but the best brakes are good enough. And no other low priced car but Terraplane meets that demand with Duo-Automatic Hydraulic Brakes (patent applied for). Latest and best hydraulics with a separate safety braking system that takes hold automatically if ever needed.

For added safety on the highway—greater steadiness on curves—two more 1936 improvements: Tru-Line Steering and the Rhythmic Ride.

Safer Bodies! Safer Chassis!
The world's first safety engineered chassis is now combined with America's first bodies all of steel, and seamless roof of solid steel.

There is extra safety, too, in Terraplane's record-breaking performance, to take you out of traffic "tight spots." And in the Electric Hand, an optional extra, for easier gear shifting and safer driving.

Drive safely in 1936—in a car that you know to be safe. Drive a new Terraplane.

WIFE IN CUSTODY by BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER XLIII
Walter, dear, I know Irene's and this awful tragedy have made you terribly but, after all, you have your own family. It isn't normal to bury yourself in Irene's normal like this. You haven't let me. You haven't let me
you. You must have needed
you look so tired.

"You don't know, I suppose."
She came up to the stair where he stood and faced him. "Know?"
"Know what?"
"I was convinced now that she had no idea of her part in the tragedy and yet he had had anything between them."

"He choked? For a moment he couldn't speak."
"I saw something more than his death and Irene's plight in seeing you. You must tell me."

"He choked his arm."
"He strangled away from her touch."
"His face blanched. She walked behind him up the stairs but she didn't touch him again."

"Now please what is it?" she asked when they were in his room.
"I'm not going to tell you. If you conscience doesn't tell you,
you deserve to suffer in suspense. I've got to go with Irene."

"When I return, I'll feel better. I know we can talk it over then."
"My conscience? What are you talking about?" Helen was trembling with anger but she strove to keep her hand under control. "What is this, Walter?"

"I'll tell you when I get back."
"Oh, no, you won't. You'll tell me you can't go to Europe."
"Can't do it? You can't leave like this. What is all this? Why must you go?"

"Because Irene needs me," he responded savagely.
"Irene needs you? Why does Irene need you? What can you possibly do for her? Can you bring Dirk back to her? Can you ease her responsibility?"

"Walter faced her, his fists clenched. Irene's remorse! How could you? The less you say about her the better. At least you must have the grace to let me go without protest. Your conscience should dictate that much at least," he added bitterly. "You are as depraved as Irene said you were."

"My conscience! Me, depraved?
He said. What are you talking about?" she whispered.
"About you and Dirk! You are responsible!" Walter tried to hold himself back but the words poured from his lips in a frenzy of anger and rage.

"Walter, what are you talking about?" Helen was calmer now.
"What have they said to you? What do you believe?"
"He told her, his brow ruffled, his eyes sparkling convulsively. "Must I tell you?" he croaked. "Don't you know? Haven't you any sense of responsibility?"

"She laughed mirthlessly. "You have enough sense of responsibility for both of us."
"Then I will tell you," he cried.
"You are responsible for the suicide of Dirk. Yes, you! He was in love with you and God knows maybe you were in love with him!
You, who always swore how you loved me. You led him on, you seduced and dined and met him.
He is a jealous woman. Did you know that you were breaking her heart? You are the selfish, the cold, the villainous one. You stole my husband. He met you in Prima, then you sent for me to take up your guilt. I... I don't know."

"I don't know. Oh, God, I don't know to believe it. But they quarreled bitterly over you. Do you deny you spent a week with him in the south? Do you deny you rode with him night after night?
Did you deny that he saw you off
at the taxi from his mother's home?
Do you deny that he saw you off at the airport and fetched for you and waited for you? Do you deny it?"

"He shouted. "That's why I must go with Irene. That's why I have tried to make amends by helping her bear this tragedy because he died because of you, because..."
"Stop! I can't listen. I can't listen. Oh... She sank into a chair, her fingers stuffed in her ears, her breath choking her. Oh, my poor poor Dirk. Oh, my poor friend Dirk. Oh, I can't listen. I can't listen."

"Walter ran into the bathroom to wash her face with water. Her eyes did not weep, her eyes were dry. She did not cry or sob. But her gasping breaths wrung his heart. When Irene had had greater tragedy in her suffering, Helen's tragedy seemed to come from the heart of her soul."

"Helen, don't. I don't believe it.
I know you didn't do it deliberately.
Even so, I've got to make it easier for Irene and go with her now.
She is weaker than you. She needs
me. Now do you understand why I must go?"

"Go. You can go. I don't want you. That you should believe this of me. That I should even listen to you. That they can believe this of me. It doesn't matter about me!
I'm alive. I can defend myself. But you, Dirk! Forgive them, Dirk! she whispered. "They are too wicked to understand. Go. You can go! I never want to see you again. I never want to touch you again. I want to forget all about you. You can go." Her voice died away. She tried to grasp the arm of the chair
to keep from falling.

"Don't say that, Helen. Tell me the truth about you and Dirk. Tell me where you. Tell me it's a lie and I'll stay with you. I'll never doubt again but I must have faith. I must have faith."

"Never tell you," she whispered. "Faith! What do you know about faith! Faith! Tell me the truth! Would you know the truth? No no you go with Irene.
Dirk is dead. I am dead too. I think..." she whispered.

"Helen I know you were the innocent cause. I didn't mean ever to tell you. I thought I'd help Irene through her sorrow and then we'd go on as before. That seemed to me to be the path of my duty.

Surely you see my point," he pleaded. He tried to take her arm.
She fell back. "Don't touch me.
You didn't mean to tell me! No,
you'd have let me suffer torment
spend a week with these last days and now you're going with Irene to atone further for me innocent or guilty. Irene must be done right by!
Oh, no! Walter Riley, your responsibility to me is over. You're free now to be the perfect brother.
I'm through. Our marriage was doomed from the start!"

"You can't do this to me, Helen.
Any other man placed in my position would have the same doubts.
Suppose you were I. Suppose your sister told you that her husband spent a week with your wife in the south. What would be your reaction?"

"She smiled crookedly. "If anyone had told me that about you, I'd have laughed in scorn. You don't believe that there was nothing between Dirk and me yet," she sighed wearily. "You'll never know from me! Oh the irony of it," she added bitterly.

"Helen I want to understand.
Make me understand."
"No you never will."
"Oh Helen, let's not talk any more. My head is bursting. I'm sick with the horror of it. Tomorrow it will all look different. Don't hate me, Helen."

"I don't hate you. I don't feel anything. I feel all empty."
"Tomorrow everything will look different."
"It's too late, Walter."

"Helen, you can't mean it. I know you don't mean it. I won't say another word to you, dear. Go lie down. Rest. Tomorrow we'll both be rested. We'll be able to talk without heat. Everything will be all right."

"She gave him a look of horror.
"No, no, nothing will ever be right again between us. This is the end for us!"

"She rushed out of the room.
When he tried to follow he found
she had locked the door to her
room."

He stayed in his room all day
resting, trying to think things out.
He thought Helen too would appreciate the time to think. He tried to read but his thoughts kept returning to Helen. Had Irene really lied? Was there really anything between Helen and Dirk?

"Poor Irene. He was alternately filled with pity and anger toward her. Poor Dirk. It was all too bewildering. But he and Helen would emerge from this tragedy more firmly welded, more united, more in love than ever. Even if it were true, he would try to forgive her and forget. But could it be true?

His thoughts raced around in circles. True or not, he'd have to help Irene through. If he were willing to forget everything, then surely Helen could make some concession too.

He went to bed without coming down to dinner. He was a little surprised that no one sent up a tray. But he supposed Helen hadn't been down either.

He could hear the roar of the sea. It was a definite sound, an honest sound, a soothing sound.
Stalwart. Eternal. The sea was eternal. Helen was like the sea...
Well, so was he, really... They would both emerge from this tragedy the finer, the better for it...
God, he was weary... He slept.

The sun shining in his eyes the next morning awakened him. The breeze that blew the thin curtains was cool and fresh. He groped for his watch under his pillow. It was quarter to nine. He jumped out of bed. He tried the door to Helen's room but it was still locked. He smiled sadly. He didn't blame her.
He'd make it all up to her. He dashed into the bathroom. A cold shower set his skin stinging. He hadn't felt so vigorous, so alive, in days.

He was dressed and shaved by nine-thirty. He tipped across the hall and knocked softly at Helen's door. There was no answer. He turned the knob softly. The room was empty; the bed was already made up. He was disappointed.
"Gone down already," he said aloud. Then he remembered—
Helen was always an early riser.

The children's room was also empty
and the beds made up.
He went below. Mamie was sweeping the kitchen.
"Good morning, where's everybody?"
"Oh, Mr. Riley, good morning."
"Do we get any breakfast?"
"Where's everybody?"
"Why, they've gone."
"Why, yes, Mrs. Riley and Miss Fredericks and the children left last night. I'm closing up the place."
"Where did they go?"
"Don't you know?"
Walter felt his blood freeze in his veins. "No," he managed to say.

"Mrs. Riley said she was going away."
"Did she leave any message for me?"
"Yes, she said to tell you she and the children had gone to... to...
Wait, I wrote it down." She found a scrap of paper in the cupboard.
"She's going to the Terhunes at New Canaan."

Walter did not see her again. In vain he phoned and called. He always got Cecily. "I'm sorry, Walter but Helen says she has told you all there is to know."
It didn't take the Rileys long to find out that Helen had left Walter and had gone to New Canaan with the children to stay with the Terhunes. When Agnes heard from Carl what had happened, she was consumed with righteousness.

"That proves her guilt," she declared. "She has betrayed Walter.
She killed Dirk and now she turns to the Terhunes when she has nowhere else to go!"

An hour later Agnes told the whole story to her mother and sisters. They descended on Walter like an avenging army. "Was it true? Oh, that white grub! That misérable, lying, cheating sneak!"
Walter in despair and rage yelled at them to mind their own damn business.

"You see," Agnes gloated, "for all her guilt, he still takes her part!"
To escape from them and from the despair of his impotence to get in touch with Helen, Walter sailed for Europe two days later with Irene. She, at least, needed him.

Number.

Conduct Services
Revival services are being held at the Friends' church at 7:30 each evening this week. Afternoon services will be held at 2 on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Harlan Mosher is in charge of the singing.

Business Meeting
Thursday evening monthly business meeting will be held from 7 to 7:30.

Theater Attractions

Robert Donat will be seen on the screen for the first time since
"The Count Of Monte Cristo" in
"The 39 Steps," which will be shown at the State Thursday only.
This is an unusual and out of the ordinary mystery film. It has been praised for its excellent direction and listed by some among the ten best films of the year.

The story concerns Robert Donat, a young Canadian, on a holiday in London, who comes to the assistance of a young girl in a riot occurring in a music hall. He escorts the girl to his apartment where she informs him that she is a spy,
engaged at the moment in watching a gang which is after the plans of a new airplane, owned by the English government.

Girl Is Killed
She is killed before she has said him the whole story. She has said that her next step was to see a Professor Jordan in a remote village in the Scottish highlands. Donat, realizing that the murder will be pinned on him, plans to clear himself by finding out who murdered the girl and also to discover who is back of the entire plot.

Madeleine, Carroll, playing opposite Donat, believes up to the end that Donat is guilty, but is not cowed by him and finally her hate is turned into love.

This is the first time American movie audiences have seen Robert Donat in a modern film, his other two appearances being in
"The Private Life of Henry VIII"
and "The Count Of Monte Cristo."
In the former he came to the notice of film companies with his performance of Mr. Culepepper. He found himself famous over night
when "The Count Of Monte Cristo" was released.

Excellent Mystery Story
Donat has been fortunately cast
in good pictures with capable directors. His "The 39 Steps" is an excellent mystery story well directed and expertly played. Ward
Marsh, Cleveland Plain Dealer
motion picture critic, in his talk before Salem women's clubs here yesterday, cited Donat's picture to illustrate his statement that through good direction and editing
the movies have made a great stride toward perfection.

Today's Pattern

2654
FROCK THAT'S SIMPLE TO SEW
Pattern 2654

Suppose you are just working around the house—it's nice to wear clothes that flatter the figure, especially if you're inclined to overweight. Every woman will find this style a very becoming one, and exceptionally easy to make. Isn't the zig-zag shoulder line an unusual and striking one? Worthy of a dress-up frock, isn't it? And how it simplifies the cutting and fitting, too! The back's just one large piece—(which saves—even more precious minutes) with a smattering of darts at waist and shoulder to insure trim fit. Make it up in a pretty poplin, percale, broadcloth or seersucker, and be sure you're colorful in the choice of buttons.

Pattern 2654 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3½ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Be sure to order our spring pattern book for smart new clothes that'll fit you and your needs to a "T"! Gay, practical frocks to cheer you at work. Lovely party frocks and sports clothes to flatter you at play. Collars, blouses, skirts for multiplying costumes. Chic slenderizing styles. Patterns for tois. Fabric and accessory news. Price of book 15 cents. Book and a pattern together, 25 cents.

Address orders to Salem News Pattern department, 243 West 17th st., New York, N. Y.

forget the farmers and their problems," Stout said. "The farmer must be recognized."

John McSweeney, former congressman and state welfare director, was scheduled to speak at the program this afternoon.

This afternoon's program also was to include a peace talk, "A Word that Moves the World," by Mrs. Lowell Muntz; an address by Mrs. Meats on "My Ohio," reading, "My First Trip," by Hazel George Hawkins; vocal duet, Hazel and Martha Farmer, and a play, "Uncle Dick's Mistake." The invocation was to be given by Rev. A. C. Westphal of the First Baptist church.

The institute program will continue in the Memorial building this evening, starting at 8 o'clock. A woodwind quintet from Lisbon High school will be heard, and a play, "A Mighty Chain," will be given by Mt. Nebo grangers.

Invocation will be given by Rev. A. Klingaman, pastor of St. Jacob's Reformed church. "Dad's Day" will be the topic of Mrs. Meats' talk. Stout will speak on "Acres of Diamonds." The Mt. Nebo entertainers also will be heard.

Salem grange will be in charge of the Thursday morning program, opening at 10, while Goshen grange will have charge tomorrow afternoon. A new speaker tomorrow will be Nathan N. Keener of the Byron W. King School of Oratory, Pittsburgh.

Posters, drawn and painted by school boys and girls, were to be judged today and awards made. They are on display in the Memorial building.

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby and lifeless. Salves and cutting of ten fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonard discovered a real internal Pile medicine. After a fine record of success with it in his own practice, he named it HEM-ROID. All druggists invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

SALEM SCOUTS REVEAL GAINS

Show Advance In Movement At Rally In County Seat

Salem; second vice president, R. T. Couch, East Liverpool; third vice president, E. S. Kerr of Salem, and treasurer, Frank Gardner, East Liverpool.
Charles E. Felton, Lisbon, who is starting his 10th year as county scout executive, addressed the gathering, pointing out that he, as well as other scouts were anxious to make 1936 the best year yet in scouting. The report of the county council for 1935 was read by Felton.

Music for the meeting was presented by Rowland Kaufman, tenor soloist, of East Liverpool, accompanied by Clair Chambers. He sang four selections. Group singing was led by John Coleman of East Liverpool.

While tracing the history of scouting in its 25 years of existence the speaker of the evening, Atty. Hammond, called upon individuals to understand that scouting is more than a moral issue; that emphasis must be laid on the physical qualities of scouts in order to prepare them for future life. "Scouts must do have a high respect for law and order, civic pride and patriotism," he said. The correct training, such as the scout receives, enables him to be a more able leader as he grows older," he pointed out. "Once a scout usually a dependable citizen," Hammond said.

Salem And Massillon Play In Only Big Six Game This Week

Trojans, Columbians And Methodists Win In Class B Contests

League Basketball Activity For Week At Memorial Building Is Brought To Close With Games Last Night

Class A and Class B basketball activity was brought to a close for the remainder of the week with games at the Memorial building last night in which the Columbians trounced Winona, 36 to 17, the Methodists defeated the Christians, 33 to 20, and the Trojans lambasted the Saxons, 34 to 20. All of the games were in the Class B league.

Although there will be no additional Class A or B loop games this week, because of the Farmers Institute meeting at the Memorial building, the Class C, or Church league will play on Saturday afternoon as regularly scheduled, it was announced by Joe Kelley, director of the city league.

In all of the contests last night the winning teams gained the lead in the opening period and maintained their advantage in each following quarter.

The Columbians jumped to a 10 to 4 lead in the first quarter of their game with Winona, were out in front, 19 to 7 at halftime and held a 30 to 13 advantage at the close of the third period.

Methodists Ahead
Against the Christians, the Methodist quintet was ahead, 5 to 1, at the end of the first quarter, 16 to 9 at the intermission, and 20 to 15 when the third period concluded.

The Trojans grabbed a one-point lead, 7 to 6, in the first frame of their game with the Saxons, increased their advantage to 21 to 12, by the end of the first half, and held a commanding 30 to 15 lead at the close of the third quarter.

Outstanding individual performances during last night's Class B games were turned in by Malloy of the Columbians, Kerr of the Methodists, R. Doyle of the Christians, Brantisch of the Saxons and West of the Trojans.

Salem Girls Hand Lorain Team Its First Defeat

Taking the lead in the second quarter after a scoreless first period, the Salem Pennzipps girl eagles handed the Lorain girls' quintet their first defeat of the season, 27 to 17, at Lorain last night.

Paced by Ann Zeile, who chalked up 18 points during the contest, the Salem girls outscored Lorain in every period. They held a three-point lead at halftime, 10 to 7, and a 16 to 9 edge at the close of the third period.

Lorain, regarded as one of the leading girl teams in Ohio, was undefeated up until its set back by the Pennzipps last night.

WERNET TOPS CITY KEGLERS

City Hall Bowler Leads Class A League With Average of 181

Averaging 181 pins in the 45 games which he has rolled at the Masonic Temple alleys, Charles Wernet of the City Hall keglers leads all other bowlers of the Class A league who have participated in at least two-thirds of their team's games.

Wernet's average is five pins better than that of Mayor George Harroff and Jim Armstrong of the Foremen, Bob White and Paul Covert of the Sinks and DeCrow of the K. of C. all of whom have an average of 176 pins a game.

In the Class B league, Joe Calladine of the Sanitary Office five leads with an average of 169 pins in the 38 games which he has bowled. Close behind Calladine is Dominick Calladine of the Mullins Shop team with an average of 168.8.

The following list of averages was compiled by John Carpenter, league secretary:

Quakers Will Attempt To Keep Tigers From Winning League Title

Massillon Needs Victory Saturday Night To Assure It of Gaining Northeastern Ohio Big Six Championship

The basketball spotlight of the Northeastern Ohio Big Six league falls upon the Salem High school gymnasium Saturday night, when Coach Herb Brown's Quaker quintet will be confronted with the difficult task of preventing the Massillon High Tigers, undefeated in four Big Six games, from winning the league title.

A victory for Coach Paul Brown's Tigers would assure them of the Big Six championship, since all other teams in the league have been defeated once, and would also give them the honor of being the only organization in the league to ever win both football and basketball honors in the same athletic campaign.

The Salem-Massillon contest is the only league battle in the Big Six this week-end. Six non-league games will be played, however.

Still a Classy Team
Despite the fact the Tigers were upset by Canton McKinley last week, 44 to 18, they are still one of the classic teams of the district. Their season record, marred only by the one defeat, lists victories over Struthers, Alliance, Barberton and Niles in the Big Six and New Philadelphia and Youngstown.

Barberton Should Win
Cuyahoga Falls should prove an easy victim for the strong Barberton team. Alliance drubbed the Falls quintet, 43 to 22, and Barberton downed Alliance, 21 to 16, last week.

Struthers figures to have trouble in both of her tilts this weekend. Warren on Friday night and Youngstown Rayen, Saturday, will offer plenty of opposition to Coach Art Francis's lads.

Standings in the Big Six league and the season record of all of the league teams is as follows:

Team	W.	L.	Pts.	Opp.	Pct.
Massillon	4	0	145	74	1000
Barberton	3	1	45	92	750
Salem	1	1	54	72	500
Niles	1	3	90	133	250
Struthers	1	1	54	72	500
Alliance	0	4	76	96	000

An indication as to what chance the Quakers have of halting the Tigers may be gained from their performance on Friday night when they tangle with the East Palestine Bulldogs, undefeated in five games. This will be a Columbian county contest and will be played at East Palestine.

Other Games
Other games this week-end involving Big Six teams will be Struthers at Warren on Friday night and Dover at Alliance, Warren at Niles, Cuyahoga Falls at Barberton and Youngstown Chaney at Struthers on Saturday night.

Victims of its last six opponents, the 7D cagers defeated the 7A's in a close contest at the Memorial building yesterday afternoon. West and Walters of the 7D's and Benedict of the 7A's were the leading scorers with four points each.
